FIVE THOUSAND VICTIMS IN 1923

Tuberculosis Death Rate in Ohio Held Too High.

OVER 52,000 CASES INDICATED

Report of Registrar of Vital Statistics Division to the State Health Director Shows That the White Plague, From 1909 Until Last Year, Claimed Nearly 100,000 Persons in the Buckeye State—Statistics of Interest.

Columbus, Dec. 1.—I. C. Plummer, registrar of the division of vital statistics, states in his report to State Health Director John E. Monger that tuberculosis caused the death of 5,250 persons in Ohio during the year 1923.

Since the accepted ratio of deaths to active cases is one to 10, this would indicate 52,500 cases in Ohio, much too high, Director Monger believes, and indicating the relatively small success attained in combatting the disease.

Laxity in reporting cases also is seen by Director Monger, since only 6,856 cases were reported last year to the morbidity statistician of the Ohio department of health, or 30 per cent more cases than deaths. Often the first indication of a case of tuberculosis to the health department is a death card, Dr. Monger said. This point also was emphasized by speakers on tuberculosis at the session of the health commissioners' conference held here recently.

The tabulation of deaths showed 3,337 were in cities, and 1,913 in rural districts. The state's tuberculosis death rate per 100,000 population was 85.8, cities 87.1, and rural death rates 83.6.

From 1909, when 6,869 deaths were caused by the white plague, until last year, the disease claimed 97,776 persons in Ohio, almost exactly equal to the combined populations of Springfield and Lorain. Urban territory contributed 60,434 deaths, equaling the Springfield population, while in rural districts 37,342 deaths were reported, equaling the population of Lorain.

The total state death rate for the period from this disease was 120.6 per 100,000; the urban rate being 128.7 and the rural rate 109.6.

Deaths from all causes numbered 75,066 in Ohio last year, a death rate of 12.2 per 1,000 population. Thus tuberculosis caused about 7 per cent of all deaths in 1923. In the 15-year period, tuberculosis was responsible for 9.27 per cent of deaths in the state.

Total deaths in the 15 years were 1,056,316, equal to the combined population of Cleveland and Columbus. The death rate, 13 per 1,000 population, is divided into an urban rate of 13.4, with 630,386 deaths, and a rural rate of 12.5, with 425,930 deaths. Total urban deaths in the period were 20,000 more than the combined 1920 populations of Cincinnati and Akron, and total rural deaths were nearly 25,000 more than the 1920 population of Cincinnati.

Morgan county had the highest tuberculosis death rate last year with 192.4, while Carroll had the lowest at 12.5. Cuyahoga's death rate was 91.1, Clark 100.1, Franklin 113.4, Hamilton 120.5, Montgomery 130.6, Erie 67, Scioto 99.9, Summit 56.8, Mahoning 73.6 and Lucas 108.3.

Gallipolis, with 287.9, led in cities' death rates from this disease, while Ironton was second with 250.6. Struthers had the lowest rate, with 14.8, followed by Delphos, with 16.7 and Kenmore with 18. Other city death rates from tuberculosis last year were: Canton 60.8, Cincinnati 130.4, Cleveland 90.3, Dayton 94.2, Portsmouth 115.2, Sandusky 79.3, Springfield 85, Toledo 115.5 and Youngstown 79.8.

Oldest Active Editor Dead.
Xenia, O., Dec. 1.—James Parker Chew, 92, dean of Ohio newspaper editors, founder and editor of the Xenia Daily Gazette, died at his home here, his demise being due to the infirmities of age, after an illness of three weeks. Chew bore the title of the "oldest active newspaper editor in the country." He was born in York county, Pa., in 1832, and received his school education and learned the printing trade at Carlisle, Pa.

Retired Farmer Suffocated.
Ottawa, O., Dec. 1.—Neighbors, failing to notice any signs of life at the Ash residence here, broke into the home and found that David Ash, 74, retired farmer of Leipsic, had been suffocated by fumes from a hard coal stove and his wife was in an unconscious condition from the same cause.

Annual Christmas Seal Sale in Ohio Opens Today.

Columbus, Dec. 1.—The seventeenth annual Christmas seal sale in Ohio opened today, when 30,000,000 of the little stickers were started on their annual mission of raising funds to carry on the warfare against tuberculosis. Governor Donahay officially launched the campaign. Sale of the seals in Ohio is conducted through local voluntary health agencies, schools and civic and welfare clubs. The proceeds are devoted to fresh air camps for undernourished children, care of patients in sanatoria, supplying milk to school children and carrying on health educational work. A statewide committee, which sponsors the sale for the Ohio Public Health Association, is headed by Dr. W. O. Thompson, president of Ohio State university. A committee of representative newspaper men of the state, headed by A. E. McKee of the Ohio State Journal, has been named to promote the campaign of education, which is conducted in connection with the seal sale.

SAYS CAMPAIGN COST $3,603,000

Republican Expenditures Are Announced by Butler.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Chairman William M. Butler of the Republican national committee announced that the recent campaign cost the committee $3,603,952. Butler also reported a surplus of $355,264, which compares with the deficit of about $2,000,000 incurred in 1920, remained in the treasury after all expenditures had been met. The chairman said:

"The campaign was financed by 90,605 individual contributors. Of this number, 83,299 made individual contributions of less than $100. While the total amount collected was $4,359,478.82, approximately $1,000,000 of this amount $956,525.11, was collected by the national committee in certain states, but only in its capacity as agent for the local state committees, and this money was immediately returned to the committees in the states in which it was collected, no part being available for the national committee budget expenditures. Thus, for the actual expenses of the national committee there was collected and made available $3,402,953.71, which, with bank interest and small balances of $16,263.58, made a grand total of $3,419,217.29."

A final report on the receipts and expenditures of the committee during the campaign will be filed with the clerk of the house by William N. Hodges, treasurer of the Republican national committee.

To Fight For Her Job.
Canby, Ore., Dec. 1.—Mrs. Clifford Leroy Samuelson, high school teacher, formerly Miss Rosamond Lee Shaw, who was married recently to one of the 17-year-old pupils of the school, announced that she would fight action taken by the school board in dismissing her. The board decided to revoke her contract after considering a petition signed by 106 citizens and patrons of the school.

SUPPLY BILLS HAVE THE CALL

Congress Convenes Today for the Final Session.

OPENING BRIEF IN HOUSE

New Members Sworn In and Resolutions Adopted on the Death of Members — President Coolidge's Message to Be Read Wednesday, According to Present Plans—Farm Legislation May Be Put Through.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Congress convened today for the final session, which will end March 4 next.

The opening today was brief. New members elected or appointed to succeed those who have died since last May were sworn in and committees named to inform the president that the congress was ready to receive communications from him. Then resolutions were adopted on the death of members and immediate adjournment was taken out of respect to their memories.

President Coolidge's message will be read in both houses on Wednesday, according to present plans. Early attention will be given by the house to the annual supply measures, the first of which, that for the interior department, probably will be reported out tomorrow. The appropriations committee has the work on a number of others well under way and Chairman Madden hopes to get them all out before the first of the new year. The senate, under plans of the majority leaders, will take up such general legislation as the steering committee shall deem of the first importance.

Farm aid legislation is one thing that leaders in both houses are anxious to put through, but early action is not in prospect, as congress probably will desire to await the report of the farm commission appointed by President Coolidge.

Amendments to the transportation act make up other legislation for which there will be a demand from all sides in both houses. Bills affecting freight rates and Pullman surcharges and providing for the abolition of the railroad labor board already are pending in one house or the other, and there will be determined efforts to bring them to the front. In the house the Barkley-Howell bill to abolish this board has the right of way.

Observers say that the action of the senate Republican conference in reading out of the party at this time Senator La Follette of Wisconsin and his three chief supporters, Brookhart, Frazier and Ladd, will result in further complicating a complex congressional situation. Since the La Follette bloc will continue to hold the balance of power at the final session of this congress, leaders generally anticipate little legislative action before March 4 beyond the passage of the appropriation bills.

Senator La Follette and his supporters have as yet held no conferences with respect to their course at the coming session, but attention was called to situations under which they could, if they desired to do so, endanger any legislative program agreed upon by administration leaders by enforcing certain rules of the senate. Without anticipating that there will be a disposition by the insurgents to adopt such a course, some senators expressed doubt that even all of the supply measures can be put through before the end of the short session, March 4. Their belief is that the situation resulting from the conference action is one increasing the necessity for an extra session of the new congress elected last month.

HERE AND THERE

Ben I. Salinger, former vice president of the defunct Midland Packing company of Sioux City, Iowa, was sentenced in federal court to serve four years in federal prison and to pay a fine of $1,000 for use of the mails to defraud in connection with the promotion of the company.

William S. Silkworth, former president of the Consolidated stock exchange, New York, was convicted in the United States district court of the charge of using the mails to defraud. A contract has been concluded with Russia to supply oil to Italy. The Russian Naphtha syndicate during 1925 must deliver to Italy 120,000 tons of oil for the needs of Italian industry.

OHIO HAPPENINGS

Two Women Killed.

Dayton, O., Dec. 1.—Mrs. Charles Fagan, 29, actress, and Miss Pearl Att of Lima, O., were killed when two automobiles carrying members of a troupe collided with a Pennsylvania train at Eaton, O. The body of Miss Att was sent to Spencerville, O., for burial. Five of the automobile party, which was composed of members of a company appearing at a theater here, were injured seriously. Mrs. Fagan resided at Milford, Conn.

Judge Price Vindicated.

New Lexington, O., Dec. 1.—Mayor C. W. King announced that the affidavit filed by Marshal John F. Adams against Common Pleas Judge T. D. Price, charging him with intoxication, had been dismissed at the request of the prosecuting witness. Trial of Judge Price twice had been postponed. All preparations had been made for trial beginning today, and each side had lined up nearly 50 witnesses.

Reward Offered For Robbers.

Cleveland, Dec. 1.—A reward of $5,000 was offered for the apprehension of five robbers, who seized $17,000 in cash at the Cleveland Trust company's branch bank, Lakewood. One thousand dollars will be paid for the arrest and conviction of any one of the five men, according to John T. Shibley, chief of the safety department of the bank.

Portrait Painter Dead.

Cleveland, Dec. 1.—Adam Lehr, 81, prominent in local art circles for his portraits and other paintings, is dead, following an operation a week ago for stomach trouble. He had studied in New York and later in the Cleveland School of Art, of which he was a founder.

City Solicitor Resigns.

Cincinnati, Dec. 1.—Mayor Carrel accepted the resignation of City Solicitor Saul Zielonka, which has been in his hands since Nov. 10. The mayor said he had not determined upon a successor. Zielonka resigned to resume private practice of law.

Convicted of Murder.

St. Clairsville, O., Dec. 1.—Konrad Gwozdenkow, 38, Russian miner, was convicted in Belmont county common pleas court of murdering Annie Koskoff, 7, at Dilles, last July 18. If the conviction is upheld Gwozdenkow will be sent to the electric chair.

Hangs Self in Jail.

Carrollton, O., Dec. 1.—Less than an hour after he was bound over to the grand jury on a charge of issuing a check with intent to defraud, G. C. Huntsman, a meat dealer living near Jewett, hanged himself in the county jail here.

Used Poison and Gun.

East Liverpool, O., Dec. 1.—Mrs. John Evan, 50, who has been in ill health, drank a quantity of poison, then shot herself in the left breast in an effort to commit suicide.

Fourteen Seamen Drowned.

Paris, Dec. 1.—Fourteen men were drowned when two trawlers from Corunna, Spain, were caught in a terrific storm off that harbor and sank. The Belgian steamer Gyptis of 1,194 tons gross, laden with coal from Cardiff, Wales, was wrecked at the mouth of the Gironde and is a total loss. The crew of 20 was saved.

TRACY DEALS WITH HIGHWAYS

Road Maintenance in Ohio Held an Acute Problem.

ANNUAL REPORT PRESENTED

State Auditor Says That Ohio, With More Than $125,000,000 Invested in State Roads, Spends Less Than Four Per Cent a Year in the Maintenance and Development of the Enterprise—Recommendations.

Columbus, Dec. 1.—State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy says in his annual report that the problem of maintaining roads in such condition that they will safely and adequately serve the traveling public is more acute than that of construction of additional highways.

Tracy states that Ohio now has well over $125,000,000 invested in its state roads, and that it is spending less than 4 per cent a year in the maintenance and development of the enterprise which has been built at this great cost. He continues:

"It is generally agreed that people who use a highway should pay for its maintenance and further necessary development after the original construction. Present appropriations are inadequate. The logical course would appear to be for the next general assembly to enact such legislation as will provide the necessary funds, to be paid by those who use the highways, in such manner as it shall determine to be the most equitable and just."

The state's share of receipts from registration of autos will exceed the amount appropriated for maintenance of highways by at least $4,500,000 at the end of the present biennium, Tracy declares. He recommends that the unappropriated balance be made available for use by the next legislature. "In view of the fact that this money can not be used for any purpose other than the maintenance of highways," he continues, "it is further recommended that receipts from this source be made 'available as received' in the next appropriation bill."

Tracy points out that the state has no money set aside to continue its road construction beyond that provided by the present appropriation. This expires at the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1925. No state bonds have been issued for road building, and the state tax levy for road construction was abolished by the last legislature.

"The policy of providing money from the general revenue fund for road building can not be criticized as long as there are funds available," he comments. "If the expenditure for other phases of state government during the next biennium is not enlarged beyond the present appropriation and the normal increase in the state's revenues continues, it would appear entirely possible to set aside approximately $5,000,000 a year from the general revenue fund for the next two years to be used in road building. With Ohio rapidly closing the gaps on the state highway system, the road-building program of the state should not be allowed to slacken until we have completed the construction of all our important highways."

Two engineer-inspectors from the state auditor's department are assigned directly to the work of the highway department to supervise expenditure of public funds. "Public funds paid out on these state enterprises total $21,000,000 a year," Tracy says, in commenting on the need for inspectors because of the "unusually difficult" task of the highways department.

Calles Takes Oath.

Mexico City, Dec. 1.—Three hundred members of the American Federation of Labor, headed by President Samuel Gompers, witnessed the inauguration of General Plutarco Calles as president of Mexico. The great national stadium, in which the ceremony took place, was crowded with 25,000 spectators. The ceremony was extremely simple.

May Extend Quarantine.

Columbus, Dec. 1.—A public hearing on advisability of extending the European corn borer quarantine will be conducted Dec. 9, in the office of Director of Agriculture Charles V. Truax.

RULING FAVORS CITY

Court Orders Continuance of Present Gas Rates in Columbus.

Columbus, Dec. 1.—Common Pleas Judge Kinkaid in a decision continued the present gas rates in effect and declared Columbus is entitled to deal directly with the Ohio Fuel Supply company, disregarding intermediate organizations and profits. He decided that in holding the four companies supplying Columbus with gas to be one company in actuality, he is protecting not only the consumers, but the stockholders of the company as well, for the reason that such a combination of companies, if held to be actual rather than fictitious, would constitute a violation of the state anti-trust law.

The court refused to make a decision as to what may be a fair gas rate until the companies abolish fictitious corporate organizations and, coming into court with clean hands, produce evidence to show the actual cost of producing gas, transporting it to Columbus and delivering it to the ultimate consumers. He continued the temporary restraining order agreed upon by both sides, which provided present gas rates are to continue, with one exception, that the difference between the 40-cent rate set by council and the present rates be impounded with the possibility that, upon final adjudication, it will be returned to the consumers.

OHIO CANNERS TO MEET

Several Topics of Interest to Farmers Will Be Discussed.

Columbus, Dec. 1.—The annual convention of the Ohio Canners' association, to be held in Columbus Dec. 9 and 10, will discuss topics of interest to farmers as well as canners, according to an announcement made by Roy Irons, secretary of the association. Depredations of the corn borer in northern Ohio are to be considered, as it has been reported that it may be necessary to extend the quarantined area farther south next year. At the coming convention Professor L. L. Huber of the Ohio experiment station, Wooster, will discuss "The European Corn Borer and Its Control." Thus far the corn borer has not affected the canning of sweet corn, as it has not been permitted to get far down in the state. Another subject of interest is seed corn. Owing to the late spring, seed corn was not planted early enough to make it ripen so the germination would be perfect. Because of this, obtaining of seed corn will be a problem in another year.

MARKET REVIEW

Columbus, Dec. 1.—Market conditions during the past week are reviewed by the Ohio division of markets as follows:

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—Potatoes markets unsettled. New York sacked round whites closed at $1 10/16 25 1-2 100 pounds in eastern cities, mostly 80-90 c. b. Rochester; northern sacked round whites sold at 70¢/80¢ carlot sales in Chicago, mostly around 70¢ c. b. shipping points. Cabbages advanced sharply in Chicago; barely steady in other city markets; slightly weaker at shipping points. New York Danish type mostly $20/25 bulk per ton in eastern markets, $12/14 f. o. b. Rochester; northern Danish type $22/25 in Chicago, $15/17 f. o. b. Kego-sha, Wis. Onions steady in Chicago, stronger elsewhere. New York yellow varieties closed at $2 25/25 1-2 bulk per 100 pounds in New York; midwestern yellows $1 50/22 25 in consuming markets, f. o. b. west Michigan points. Apples fairly steady. New York Baldwin's $4 75/50 per barrel in Pittsburgh; eastern yellows $4 75 in Philadelphia; Illinois Jonathans $7 50/8 in Chicago.

GRAIN—Grain market fluctuating, closing on practically last week's level. Wheat futures nervous. Corn firm after last week's decline, with good demand balancing increased offerings. Oats practically lower. Good demand for cash grains with prices following future prices. Quoted Nov. 29: No. 1 dark northern wheat, Minneapolis $1 53 1/4; No. 2 red winter wheat, Chicago $1 64 1/4; No. 2 hard winter wheat, Chicago $1 54 1/4; No. 2 mixed corn, Chicago $1 14 1/4; Minneapolis $1 10; No. 2 yellow corn, Chicago $1 17 1/4; Minneapolis $1 16; No. 3 yellow corn, Minneapolis $1 11 1/4; No. 2 white corn, Chicago $1 14 1/4; No. 3 white corn, Chicago $1 13 1/4; Minneapolis $1 12 1/4.

LIVE STOCK AND MEATS—Chicago hog prices ranged from 10c lower to 30c higher than a week ago, closing at $9 40 for the top and $8 30/35 for the bulk. Better grade of yearling steers 25c to 40c higher; heifers 25c higher; veal 50c higher; stockers and feeders weak to 15c lower. Wholesale prices in eastern markets, good grade of meats, Nov. 29: Beef, $12 1/2; veal, $14 1/2; lamb, $20 22; mutton, $12 1/2; light pork loins, $15 1/2; heavy loins, $12 50/16 50.

No. 1 alfalfa, Kansas City $21 75; Omaha $17 50; Denver $16 50; Memphis $27; No. 1 prairie, Kansas City $12 50; Omaha $10; Denver $16 50; St. Louis $16 50.

DAIRY PRODUCTS—Butter markets try firm and higher during the week. Closing wholesale prices, 92 scored: New York 64¢; Chicago 50¢; Philadelphia and Boston 43¢. Cheese markets firm. Wholesale prices on Wisconsin primary markets Nov. 29: Single daisies 23c double daisies 25c. Butter 20c square prints 23 1/2c.

Illustrious Family.

In tracing the genealogy of a New England family that came from England in 1634, Merton T. Goodrich reports to the Journal of Heredity that 23 per cent of this man's male descendants have held public office. Of his seven sons, five of them held town offices. Many of the female descendants were teachers.

Importance of "Now."

"Now" is ever ticking from the clock of time. "Now" is the watchword of the wise. "Now" is on the banner of the prudent. Let us keep this little word always in our mind; and whenever anything presents itself to us in the shape of work, whether mental or physical, let us do it with all our might, remembering that now is the only time for us.—Selected.

THE NORTH POLE—AND FIVE OTHERSEarth Has Six, in Three Groups of Twins.

Washington, D. C.—The earth has at least six well-known poles, in three groups of twins, only one of which the Shenandoah or the Los Angeles, if they blaze an air trail across the Arctic, will probably cross—the North pole. The others of the polar family are the "poles of cold," the South pole and the North and South magnetic poles," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The most talked of member of the family is the North pole. Enthroned at the top of the earth where latitude becomes 90 degrees and the meridians of longitude converge, it has received only one visit in all time. Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, with his retinue of Eskimo attendants, spent a few hours in its frigid presence and took notes on its refrigerating system. "Scientists tell us that this refrigerating plant, installed and operated solely by nature, never fails to register below the freezing point of fresh water even during July, and that its mean temperature in winter is about that of some of the Montana cold snaps.

"Even Old Sol, when he returns to the North has been unsuccessful in breaking up the plant, though at the summer solstice he pours out larger amounts of his rays there than at any other part of the earth's surface except at the corresponding point in the South. If he didn't have to keep moving he soon would make the Arctic ice cap the hottest region on the earth's surface, but he only succeeds in melting some of the surface ice. In honor, or defiance, of his visit, daylight lasts for six months, but humidity, cloudiness and precipitation mar the beauty of his rays on the crystals of the snow palace.

"When he leaves and night sets in, fantastic lighting effects, which shame those of New York's Great White Way, are brought into play. The northern part of the sky is illuminated by an arch of whitish, greenish, or rosy light from which streamers of white or colored light go trailing across the heavens. This effect is called the aurora borealis.

"Though the North pole can never leave its kingdom and has been rigidly bound down by nature, it does manage to shift about in a circle 50 feet in diameter. This restlessness causes a corresponding variability in terrestrial latitudes.

One Caller in a Million Years.

"When Admiral Peary stood on the top point of the earth, he was actually being turned around only once in 24 hours with the rotation of the earth. As he simply lingered for a few hours he made only a small part of a revolution—a pace which is not conducive to dizziness.

"The other monarch of the world's ice lands is the South pole, twin of the North pole. Though there is all the distance in the world between them, in the main the surroundings are duplicated. The arrangement of land and water in their respective spheres of influence is somewhat different; the southern, a land zone surrounded by a wide belt of open sea, and the northern, a water body surrounded by continental land masses. The southern monarch likes his summers colder; in fact so cold are the summers and so regular the winds that there is practically no plant life of even the most insignificant kind on the Antarctic continent. He is also less exclusive than his brother of the North, having received two earthly travelers within his portals—Capt. Roald Amundsen and Capt. Robert F. Scott, but from the latter he exacted a death penalty.

"The North and South magnetic poles, located more than a thousand miles from the true North and South poles toward Hudson bay and New Zealand, are the elusive members of the polar family. The North magnetic pole makes the compass needle stand up straight on its point, and the South magnetic pole makes it stand on its foot, and they both play tricks with all sorts of metal instruments by magnetizing or demagnetizing their parts.

Why Compass Swerves From North.

"When John Jones travels through northern Wisconsin or Minnesota woods solely with the aid of his compass, he cannot go directly north unless he travels just a little west of the direction in which his compass points, because of its affinity for the North magnetic pole.

"The explanation of the magnetic poles is that the earth itself is a magnet, made so probably by the electric currents passing around it in an east-west direction.

"The poles of cold are the shmeels and Hagars of the polar family—outcasts, both erratic and disagreeable. They reside in the places where the cold is most intense, usually in the interior of a continent. Though the North pole has the coldest mean annual temperature, there is a desert of ice in the interior of Greenland, which is the coldest part of the northern hemisphere in July. Verkhoyansk, in northeastern Siberia, on the fringe of the Arctic circle is colder in January than the North pole itself. It even boasts a record of 94 degrees Fahrenheit below zero, but its mean temperature for January is about minus 60 degrees Fahrenheit. During February Fort Conger, Grinnell land, on Ellesmere Island in the Arctic, claims the honor, with a mean temperature for February of about minus 40 degrees Fahrenheit."

Value of Quick Decision.
As a rule the man who has trained himself to quick decisions and prompt actions follows close to the right. He does not need to debate questions as does the man who has become a master of deliberation. His mental faculties seem to work automatically and they are generally right. I'm not sure but that they are more often right than they are with the man who is constantly weighing pros and cons and becoming confused with the issues. He saves time because he acts quickly and he saves everybody the uncertainty of indecision.

Why wait by sending your hemstitching out of town. We can do your work just as good and less time. Barnhill's.

"The Leading Furniture Dealers"

MOST VISITED ENGLISH CITY

Liverpool, However, Is Least Known of All by Travelers.

Washington.—The last city to have its civic week at the Wembley Empire exhibition was Liverpool.

"And Liverpool," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society, has seen more visiting Americans than any other English city, while, it is safe to say, these Americans saw less of Liverpool than they did of any other place in Europe.

"They know that the city has miles and miles of docks; that the world in general unloads upon these docks vast quantities of raw materials, no mean part of which are the cargoes of grain, cattle, cotton, tobacco and meats from the United States. They also know that the busy factories of Lancashire, Yorkshire and the Midlands converge their wares upon these docks, pouring out into the world commerce stream shiploads of woven linen, woolen and cotton, machinery and metals.

"The flag of sixty steamship lines which ply in and out of Liverpool were on display at Wembley. Two other features of the exhibit were horses and art treasures.

"The Liverpool dray horses are famous. Never ending lines of trucks drawn by these handsome, massive animals move along Liverpool's streets between docks and warehouses and railway stations. The trucks are the type known as 'lorries,' which originated in this city.

"Annually the city has a spring carnival at which parades of the horses form a principal attraction. At Wembley one Liverpool horse is reported to have registered a pull of 21 tons and then, with a second horse, to have exceeded the capacity of the register, which was 29 tons.

"Coal-Smoked Greek Architecture."

"The art treasures were from Liverpool's museum, wherein may be found a gallery of paintings, an aquarium and a public library. The most beautiful building in the city, however, is not the museum, but St. George's hall, which, even though it has been called a piece of 'coal-smoked Greek architecture,' is impressive for its fine, simple and dignified lines. It was the conception of a twenty-four-year-old architect.

"One of the notable collections of the museum is that of Joseph Mayer, a silversmith, and in this collection is a box of silver coins with a label bearing an interesting story. When the juvenile Joseph was walking with a relative in the fields one day, a plowman turned up several coins. The relative offered the boy a reward if he would decipher the inscriptions. The boy earned that reward and became so interested in relics of that sort that he became a distinguished antiquary.

"Liverpool once was a city of slums but, even before the World war, the city corporation had begun tearing down unsanitary dwellings and putting up low-price tenements for its workers. There are more than 25,000 dock workers here and more unskilled labor and racial strains than in any other city of England. It has an abundance of parks and many of these are partly given over to the ancient game of outdoor bowling, which flourishes here as it does nowhere else in England.

"A novel sight, akin to the old-time curb market in New York, is the spot known as the 'Exchange Flags,' where port merchants transact much of their business during seemingly casual meetings. Liverpool also has a famous institution, the Seaman's orphanage, known to sea travelers because many of the great liners carry an 'orphanage box' to collect funds for this institution, and some of them give entertainments for its benefit.

"Geography played an unmistakable part in the fate of Liverpool. It is located three miles from the open sea, up the Mersey river, which widens from a width of less than a mile into a three-mile wide basin. King John founded a town here, but even in the early Eighteenth century when its first dock was built, it had only 5,000 people. It engaged in slave traffic with the Spanish Main and played a stellar part in the romantic days of smuggling of rum, sugar and tobacco. Its prosperity really began in 1840, with the establishment of regular steamship service between the Old world and the New.

Port of Many Immigrants.

"One of its principal articles of export to America, up until the time of the World war, were our immigrant citizens. It was a pioneer port of English emigration and, in addition, many of the American immigrants from Spain, France, Russia, Poland and the Baltic region embarked here.

"There are nearly two score consulates in Liverpool; that of the United States, it will be recalled, was distinguished by the service of Nathaniel Hawthorne. The Gladstone family have lived here for generations. William Ewart Gladstone was born here, and relatives still are active in the city's affairs.

"Birkenhead, across the Mersey, is a busy city and would be known as an important port in its own right, even if it were divested from its overshadowing neighbor. Though there is a tunnel connection, the ferries between the two cities constitute the busiest in England."

Winsome Fashions for Little Girls

Adorable Coats Available for Youngsters of School Age.

Fashions for little tots! How absurd it sounds—and yet it's quite true that they exist. It must be that the fundamental reasons behind fashion are too strong to be overpowered, even in the case of the younger members of the community. (Besides, they're only chips off the old block, after all.)

Now it's perfectly obvious, notes a fashion writer in the Detroit News, that there are two big causes of imitation in dress, which is what fashion is, of course; a desire to look like everybody else, and so avoid the appearance of oddity; and the urge to show the world at large that you can look as well, if not better, than the next fellow can. (Disillusioning, perhaps—but true.)

Now with winter ahead, mothers are considering wardrobes for their children for the months which are coming.

There are some splendid school frocks of wool canton crepe, jersey and serge. Most of them are perfectly straight all the way down for the little girls, but after "size ten" they have belts. Many of the dresses are of navy blue, but some browns and plaids are in evidence. One especially pretty dress was made of dark blue wool canton crepe trimmed with jade green. The raglan sleeves, collar and pockets were of the green, as was the piping from shoulder to pocket. The sash, which began at the pockets and tied in the back, was also of the green material. The skirt had a few plaits under the pockets and there was an inverted plait down the middle of the plain back. The collar and pockets were embroidered with a running stitch of black, with here and there solid blocks of black and white embroidery.

For a smaller girl, there are lovely little dresses of wool challis, dark or light, to suit any occasion. A pretty pink one had cross-stitch embroidery (emerald green, blue and old rose), down the sleeves, in a long oblong on the front and on the pockets. The short sleeves were slightly gathered in, tying in little bows on the elbows. There was no belt, of course, and as a frock like this would be worn very short it gave a decidedly piquant effect.

Chinese Influence as Strong as Directoire

The Chinese influence is perhaps as strong as the directoire, and is particularly to be noticed in models of afternoon dresses, says a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star. They have very often, long, straight tunics split at the sides, or flat panels in front or at the back forming tunics. They are embroidered with gold or some vivid color and trimmed with gold tassels hanging from belts, pockets, sleeves or from the ends of a scarf.

The coats are very straight, in black fulgurante, ottoman or satin; fewer in some woolen materials, with fur collars, cuffs and borders. Sometimes the coat has a yoke at the back and the back mounted with gathers; this feature is more characteristic of evening coats. Many scarf collars have fur borders; they are sometimes very wide and long, particularly in evening coats. The latter are in rich broches, lames, panne and cut velvet. A very rich model was a coat in gold lame with a round yoke, a very long and full cape bordered with gray fur and entirely lined with green panne.

Very smart three-piece costumes and tailor-mades with long, straight jackets. They are in ottoman, reps and cloth or some woolen material. A model in navy blue reps has trimmings of red cloth or silk.

Tailor-mades are trimmed with "pattes" or tabs forming fastenings, pockets and buttons. The collars are either straight or prolonged in scarfs. A very smart model was a tailor-made in black ottoman with a very long jacket fastened with three buttons on the top and three at the bottom. A narrow border of white rabbit showed all round.

New Shade of Green

One of the smartest shades is a deep rich tone of green which is called Russian green and is combined with sable or dark mink.

CRABBE ORDERS PROBE

Affairs of Cleveland Discount Company to Be Investigated.

Cleveland, Dec. 1.—Attorney General Crabbe will ask a special grand jury that will investigate affairs of the Cleveland Discount company, with a view to bringing criminal prosecution against Josiah Kirby, deposed head of the organization, and his associates. This announcement was made by Joseph Eagleson, chief assistant to the attorney general. The investigation will be conducted by Special Prosecutors David E. Green, F. L. A. Lieghley and Charles Higney, previously appointed to investigate Municipal Savings and Loan company affairs, who were in conference with Eagleson. Following their meeting, Eagleson made the following announcement: "The attorney general and his staff have discovered facts that warrant the immediate investigation of the entire Discount company, which will be undertaken by a special grand jury."

Nature's Changes.

The eastern slope of the Rockies was more humid in the Cretaceous and Tertiary than now, as one may judge by the petrified forests scattered from the Yellowstone park to Arizona, and the remains of holly, oaks, elms, chestnuts, sequoias, and other trees in the florissant shales of Colorado. In the Tertiary age the East and West were again united by land. But this was a period of successive uplifts and depressions. Areas became submerged and their forests destroyed. Other areas were subjected to severe changes locally. Erosion and other disturbances must have greatly modified the character, proportion and distribution of the species. Then came the Ice age, and forces re-established themselves.

INSTANT DEATH

David Haines Struck by Automobile of Tom Gordy, Near Washington C. H.

David Haines, 63, farmer, was almost instantly killed on the Circleville road three miles east of this city about 7:45 Thursday morning when a Durant automobile driven by Tom Gordy, of Dayton, struck him as he was driving a team attached to a farm wagon from a corn field.

Mr. Haines, a tenant on the Greiner farm near the Stewart schoolhouse, was dead within a few moments, and a short time later Sheriff Lewis was on the scene and Gordy was placed under arrest on a manslaughter charge, being released on $3,000 bond when arraigned in Justice Hard's court.

Mr. Haines had a great gash cut thru his back, severing the spinal column, his skull was fractured, his chest crushed and one arm broken in in a number of places.

Gordy's car was wrecked and the wagon badly torn up. Thomas Sheehan, employed in the N. C. R. plant at Dayton, who was riding with Gordy, was injured about one leg and taken to the Fayette hospital.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the White Oak church and burial was made in the White Oak cemetery.

Mr. Haines is survived by a wife and the following sons and daughters: Harry Coventry, of near New Holland; Robert, residing on the Bloomington and Frankfort road; George, of the Bogus road; Elizabeth, of Columbus and Emmitt and Mary, at home.—Washington C. H. Herald.

Mr. Gordy was enroute to his old home at Williamsport to visit his father, Nelson Gordy.

DEATH OF INFANT.

Norma Jean Clendennan, born October 22, 1924, in this city, died Saturday night at 9 o'clock at the home of her parents, Milbert and Helen Cannon Clendennan, 313 South Washington street.

The funeral services were held this afternoon at two o'clock at the home of Rev. S. W. Pappas officiated. Interment in Forest cemetery.

HOME FROM HOSPITAL.

Miss Mary Foresman, who has been a patient at Mt. Carmel hospital for several weeks, arrived home Sunday in Mader & Ebert's invalid car. She was accompanied by her brother, George P. Foresman, and wife.

"MARCHETA"

Rehearsals Are Progressing Nicely at Parish House—Tickets on Sale.

The Parish house on West Mound street is a very popular place of afternoons and evenings as the rehearsals for the Business and Professional Women's club play "Marcheta" began last Friday afternoon and will continue until the eleventh of this month.

The success of the play is assured, due to the fact that those who are taking part are becoming somewhat more experienced than amateurs. The play itself contains quite a bit of comedy and the members of the different committees are doing some real work to put it over bigger and better than any thing the club has attempted.

The director, Mr. E. M. Thornton, of the Harrington Adams Producing Co., is well pleased with the hearty co-operation of the members of the club. The principals and choruses are being rapidly whipped into shape and by the time for the first performance, everything will be completed to make "Marcheta" the best home talent show ever presented in Circleville.

Mrs. Roy Davis, chairman of the ticket committee, started the ticket-selling campaign and has placed tickets in hands of every member of the club and many members of the cast. The price of the tickets is $1 and time to have seats reserved will be announced later.

The club considers itself fortunate in securing the services of Miss Abbe Mills Clarke as accompanist.

The principals in the play are as follows:

Don Estaban Pompo — Mack Parrett.

Dona Farina — Miss Reynolds.
Marcheta — Mrs. Frank Kline Jr.
Welland Strong — John Gallaher.
Pepa — Miriam Ruggles.

"Chuck" McCracken — George Hitter.

Sam — Bill Pickens.

Millie — Eleanor Snyder.

Foris Kofadroz — Bozo Vanscoy.

Mrs. Ruth Rutherford — Ruth Reichleiderer.

Mannella — Hester Bentley.

Alexis — Edward Ebert.

Ricardo — Lawrence Jeffries.

The eight choruses in the play and time for rehearsals are:

Lots of Kisses group at 5 o'clock.

Street Chorus—five-thirty.

Russian Ballet—six.

Gypsy Dancers—six-thirty.

Spanish Peasants—seven.

Spanish Ballet—seven-thirty.

Chatter Group—eight.

Bridesmaid—eight-thirty.

The chorus of forty tiny tots practice from 3:30 until 4:30.

OPENS CAMPAIGN

Governor Donahey Sent Telegrams to Christmas Seal Solicitors.

The 17th Annual Christmas Seal sale in Ohio begins Monday when thirty million of the little Christmas stickers will be started on their annual mission of raising funds to carry on the warfare against tuberculosis. Governor Donahey officially launched the campaign in Ohio Sunday when he sent a telegram to the 125 local seal chairmen. Included in the number was Mrs. D. V. Courtwright, president of the Circleville Benevolent association. The telegram was as follows:

"Monday marks the opening of the 17th Annual Christmas Seal sale in state and nation. The happiest time of all the year for children is Christmas. You are doing a big work for their health and happiness. I wish you God-speed and a Merry Christmas."

Sale of the seals in Ohio is conducted thru local voluntary health agencies, schools and civic and welfare clubs. The proceeds are devoted to fresh air camps for undernourished children, care of patients in sanatoria, supplying milk to school children and carrying on health educational work.

A state wide committee which sponsors the sale for the Ohio Public Health association is headed by Dr. W. O. Thompson, president of Ohio State university. A committee of representative newspaper men of the state, headed by A. E. McKee, associate editor of the Ohio State Journal, has also been named to promote the campaign of education which is conducted in connection with the seal sale.

Sale of the penny seals has increased steadily since 1912 when less than $50,000 worth were sold to more than $225,000 last year. This year's sale is expected to exceed $500,000. During the same period of time, the death rate from tuberculosis has been reduced in Ohio from 150 per 100,000 population in 1910 to 85 in 1923.

Cubeb.

Cubeb berries are from the climbing plant called Piper Cubeba, native of the West Indies, being extensively cultivated in Java and Sumatra. It is used as local stimulant in indigestion and as a flavoring vehicle in mixtures and gargles. It is valuable particularly in diseases of the mucous membrane, especially of the bronchi. Frequently smoked in cigarettes for their effect on the mucous membrane of the bronchi and larynx.

AMUSEMENTS

Remember "Passion," "Mad Love," "Shadows of Paris" and the other big successes with Pola Negri?

Remember the picture public that in her next picture Pola Negri would absolutely return to that kind of role which first made her the internationally famed dramatic actress she really is?

Well, the picture that fulfills the promise is here!

It's "Montmartre," an Ernest Lubitsch production for Paramount, which comes to the Met theater on Monday.

In "Montmartre," Pola more than just returns to that type of part in which the public first remember her. According to those who have already seen the picture, Pola gives a far more finished performance than in any of her earlier productions, whether they happen to be European or American made. She is a more vital, a more flashing Pola as Yvette, a young dancing girl of a cafe in Montmartre whose every day is a tilt with fortune. Yvette, whose nights are spent in merrymaking amid the gay lights of the cabarets and days in almost unbearable dullness in a drab attic room—it's a great role for Pola, and Pola's great in the part. If you liked Pola in her other pictures there's a treat in store for you when you see "Montmartre."

KEEPING WELL

ARE YOU SPREADING DISEASE?

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

IN SPITE of the wonderful reduction of disease in the last twenty-five years, there is one group which is not decreasing but, on the contrary, is increasing rapidly.

This is what is known as the air-borne diseases; those caused by germs which we inhale from the air. They are "colds," influenza, bronchitis and pneumonia.

The air is polluted by germs thrown off by infected people when they cough or sneeze.

The nearer we are to such people, the greater the chance of our getting some of the germs. The nearer we are to other people and the more we cough and sneeze, the more likely we are to infect them.

The greater the crowd, whether in schools, churches, street cars, theaters or halls, the more chance these diseases have of spreading.

No way has yet been found to control these air-borne diseases. We can't boll the air as we can the water during a typhoid fever epidemic. We have to breathe the air around us.

If everybody wore gauze masks, the danger would be greatly reduced. This is done sometimes, in serious epidemics, by those who come in close contact with the patients. Doctors and nurses wore masks in the influenza wards of our camp hospitals, during the "flu" epidemic in 1917-18. Doctors and nurses wore masks in the pneumonia plague epidemic in Manchuria.

But this is too much trouble for everyday life. No one would bother about wearing a mask to a moving picture theater, though you can tell by the constant coughing and sneezing in the audience in the winter that many persons present have colds. But you can protect yourself and others to some extent by following these simple rules:

1. Don't sneeze or cough except into a handkerchief.
2. Don't sneeze or cough into any one's face or let any one sneeze or cough into your face.
3. Don't allow any member of your family who has a cold or a cough to come into close contact with the other members of the household.
4. If you have a cold, stay away from public gatherings of all kinds.
5. Wash your hands thoroughly before eating.
6. If you have a bad cold, go to bed and stay there until you are better. Pneumonia usually comes from neglected colds.

with that "fresh air" taste

Delicious—and so beautiful in their even shape and coloring. And little wonder! For they were baked with "fresh air"—in the wonderful oven of the Estate Gas Range. The fumes of burning gas never enter this oven—only fresh air, heated and sterilized by the exclusive Estate method, touches the food.

And this heated fresh air is distributed so uniformly throughout the oven that no matter in what part you place your baking, the same uniform results are certain. No "pot-watching", no shifting pans—the oven ends all this worry.

Quality Apples Now in Demand
With Growth of Consumption Buying Public Discriminates in Selection.

A survey of American nursery lists shows that there are more than 200 kinds of apples grown in this country and offered for sale as trees, but not more than 20 at most are of real commercial importance. With the growth of the consumption of apples, the buying public is developing a discriminating taste in selecting quality either for eating or cooking.

McIntosh Heads List.
A study of the apples of New York in regard to quality shows that the McIntosh heads the list with Delicious second. Following in order of excellence come Grimes' Golden, Stayman's Winesap, Jonathan, Wealthy, York, Baldwin, Duchess and Ben Davis. The last named is one of the commonest and most largely grown for many years, but has lost heavily in public favor due to its poor eating qualities. With the improvements and development of cold storage and more careful packing and shipping, the natural keeping quality is not such an important factor, and the question of quality can be given greater consideration. Many of the older and extensively grown varieties are surpassed in flavor as eating apples by newer varieties, which can now be kept and handled commercially as easily as the older, better keeping sorts.

Cooking and Eating.
With the development of a discriminating taste, some of the standard apples will be used more largely for cooking purposes while the better quality apples will be used exclusively for eating as raw fruit. Many people brought up on old-time sorts, not the tastiest apples in the world, but reliable standbys, have doubted their consumption of this health and strength giving fruit through an acquaintance with superior varieties made possible by the marvels of cold storage and the attractive and handsome displays now commonly seen in fruit markets, where a wide variety of apples is on sale in contrast to the limited assortment of former years.

Feed Flax Straw to All Classes of Live Stock

Flax straw can be fed to any class of live stock. Cattle, horses and sheep will eat it in the absence of a better grade of forage. When feeding flax straw one should bear in mind that flax straw is not of very high feeding value. Flax straw contains much crude material that is indigestible and although an animal may fill up on flax straw nevertheless the animal does not receive much nourishment from such "filling," consequently flax straw is made use of by live stock men as a filler, says a writer in the Dakota Farmer. The animals are permitted to run to the flax straw after they have received their usual ration of other materials.

Flax straw should not be fed to pregnant animals, therefore along toward the spring months when the sheep are showing lamb and the cows in calf, flax straw should not be fed. On account of so much crude material flax straw oftentimes causes excessive constipation, consequently animals fed this material should be closely watched for this condition. Occasionally when flax is frozen the straw may be poisonous. We have had such results in North Dakota. However, when not frozen flax straw is not injurious other than being rather indigestible and of low food value.

Gulls Eat Grasshoppers in Big Alfalfa Fields

Gulls have recently appeared in flocks of 4,000 or 5,000 birds in Pondera county, Montana, and destroyed most of the grasshoppers. A report received by the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture states that these birds, presumably Franklin gulls, have fed so extensively on the insects that few of them are to be found. Farmers in that section look forward to a hopperless season next year. In Utah gulls have been protected by law for many years, because of the recognized services they rendered the early Mormon settlers, and they are protected everywhere by federal law.

An observer states that great clouds of the gulls have preyed on the grasshoppers in the alfalfa fields immediately after the hay has been taken off. The whole flock usually moves about from place to place, and after the gulls have worked for a day or two in a field, depending on its size, few grasshoppers are in evidence.

Pullets Confined Will Need Spring Conditions

The pullets that are confined in the house must have spring conditions in order to give a spring production. This means they should be supplied scratch grain, dry mash, green feed, oyster shell, grit, and milk or water. A good mash can be prepared by grinding together equal parts of corn, wheat and oats, and to 80 pounds of this mixture add 20 pounds of high grade tankage. This should be fed dry in a hopper available at all times. Scratch grain can be furnished either once or twice daily at the rate of 12 to 14 pounds per 100 birds. A mixture of equal parts of corn, wheat, kafir, barley or milo, fed singly or combined makes a good scratch feed.

Sick Poultry Can Be Cured Any Season of the Year.

Circleville, O., R. F. D. 6, September 29, 1924.

Mrs. Edward H. Wardell, winner of Grand Sweep Stakes for best dozen eggs in show in Ohio State university, held February, 1924, says:

Mr. F. L. Fickardt, Dear Sir:—
I am only too glad to recommend Fickardt's Roup and Cholera Drops to any one interested in poultry, as the best preventative for contagious diseases I know of, on the market today. About three years ago cholera broke out in my flock of young chickens which were then about six weeks old and weighing about 1 1/2 pounds. There were 175 birds in this flock. As soon as I discovered they were sick I began treating them according to instructions of a specialist. I only lost eleven out of 175, and checked the disease in about three days. At that time Fickardt's Roup and Cholera Drops was recommended to me as a wonderful medicine to be used as a preventive of contagious diseases. At that time I began using the Drops and have not had an epidemic since, altho I lose one or two now and then from common causes such as apoplexy, egg-bound, etc. I begin giving it to the chicks when they are quite young and from that time on they are never without it. At the present time I am shipping two cases of eggs a week and have been for the last six months from my flock of 180 hens and I attribute this high egg production to the healthy condition of my flock. I always grade and candle my eggs and I have attained such a degree of perfection that I have less than three per cent of my eggs that do not run over the specified weight of 24 ounces to the dozen. Sincerely,

Mrs. Edward H. Wardell.

Fickardt's Roup and Cholera Drops is a remedy for Roup, Colds, sneezing, Canker, Limber neck, Chickenpox, White Diarrhoea, Indigestion and bowel complaints. Price 50 cents.

Merely Preparatory
"I have been told," said the football player to his fiancée, "that you have been engaged before; that I am not the first." The intensity of his passion made her shudder, but she quickly recovered herself. "And is it not proper," she demanded, "before playing a match game to try a few practice games with scrub teams?"

Will Put Pep Into It
The story is told of a poet taking a Broadway chorus girl to the Metropolitan galleries. She gazed at the fine paintings and listened to the inspired eulogies of the verse maker; then as they were leaving she remarked: "Well, I ain't taken up culture yet, but when I do I'll make it hum."

Employs Steam to Limit
A compound engine is one that uses its steam twice. The steam does its work in one cylinder, exhausts into a second cylinder, and then exhausts into the atmosphere. A simple engine has only one cylinder into which the steam enters from the boiler and then exhausts into the atmosphere.

Motorists' Paradise
Great Britain is an ideal country for motoring. The national and local authorities spend $200,000,000 a year on roads, and the results, from the motorist's viewpoint, are glorious. The country is spider-webbed with the most complete system of highways and byways in the world.

Fast Work in Sugar
Only five or six minutes are required to spin off and wash 600 pounds of sugar. The products of this process are washed raw sugar and wash sirup. It is the latter that is mixed with the raw sugar when it first enters the refinery for the finishing processes.

Character in Writing
There are many people in perfect health who are sensitive to surroundings or weather, and their writing alters in consequence, sometimes flowing easily, at other times halting. Some people never appear to write twice alike.

Health-Giving Fruits
The healthiest people of the world are the fruit eaters of tropical countries. Acid fruits aid in the digestion of nuts and other nitrogenous foods. Juicy fruits keep the system free from germs. They allay thirst instead of creating it.—Health Culture.

Americans Like It Hot
Fifteen gallons of hot water is the average daily consumption of Americans, according to figures compiled by the American Gas association. Americans are the most bathed people in the world excepting the Japanese, it is claimed.

The Aldine Press
The Aldine press of Venice, Italy, was one of the pioneer printing establishments of the world. It was founded in 1490 by Aldo Manuzio, a great classical scholar, and is famous for editions of the classics.

Knitting for Nerves
By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

"YOU have simply got to take up knitting," said the great nerve specialist. "Get some wool, a pair of needles and go down to Atlantic City and sit on the board walk and knit." "Me knit! I certainly would look cute sitting on the beach like some Aunt Jemima knitting pink wool. And all the idlers stopping to roar at me. No thanks."

David pulled his six feet of strong manhood impatiently out of the chair. The specialist only sat calmly looking at him.

"You prefer, then, my young fellow, to end your days in a home for neurasthenics, babbling forever about spring blossoms or trying to find a nice easy place to jump off the roof." The doctor became more serious. "Don't be a coward about life. Face it out. Perhaps a short summer of knitting, just simply giving your hands something to do, will set you on your feet."

David laughed. His nerves were not quite gone and, after all, life had heaps to offer. He would be a sport and obey the doctor's orders. Anything was better than the state he was in. Only yesterday he had shrunk from crossing the street alone and nothing could induce him to go into the subway. Certainly knitting was preferable to that mangled state of nerves.

So David packed his case, told his sister all about it and she gave him good advice as well as knitting needles and wool.

But the brainstorm that was the most brilliant of her career was her suggestion that David put on Aunt Effie's clothes when he came from his bathhouse.

"Her bonnet, with the strings to tie it on and her great cloak and ample skirts—why David you could sit on the sand and knit prize jumpers and no one would even cast a glance at you."

"You're the prize brick, Sis," laughed David. "I'll put Aunt Effie's clothes on and knit till I haven't a nerve left."

Consequently, the old lady sitting daily on the white sand attracted little or no attention. David gradually learned to knit mechanically.

It was Elsie's wee dog that first upset the apple cart of calm thought. The dog, dashing about in quest of fun, found David's woolly ball, began playing and ran joyfully off across the sand.

And David, because he always kept rather stationary when wearing Aunt Effie's clothes, just sat and watched.

And Elsie, seeing the old lady's predicament and the havoc being wrought with the wool gave chase after Fido.

It was then that David's calm deserted him. Elsie, in drenching and most nifty of bathing suits, in hot pursuit of a small dog, caused not only a burst of laughter from David, but also a heavy heart throb. Elsie, with fair hair blowing about in the breeze and as graceful as a nymph, made David tensely conscious that there were bits in the feminine world distinctly wonderful.

After a final desperate plunge the small dog was captured.

David's heart beat fast. The girl was approaching him to offer an apology.

"I'm so very, very sorry," she said in the sweetest of voices. "Fido is always doing something awful."

"But this is not awful," David quickly told her and when Elsie jumped back startled at the great boom of his voice he realized that he was supposed to be a lady.

"But he has unraveled all your lovely knitting," Elsie managed to say and looked ruefully down at a mere strand of what had been a fairly well formed sweater. "Couldn't I knit it back for you? I will slip into my bathhouse and get into my frock and come back here. You will wait?" she questioned.

"I certainly will," David agreed with a slightly modified voice.

As soon as she was out of sight David arose, dashed into his own bathhouse and emerged in the most trim of white flannels.

He seated himself on the exact spot and waited.

When Elsie appeared he knew that his nerve cure was making tremendous progress and would continue to do so long as Elsie would help him to pass away the shining hours. She was dressed in the daintiest silk jersey suit he had ever seen and her fair hair, now confined, lay in a huge coil about her head.

She stopped in dismay at seeing the big man sitting where the old lady with the knitting had been. Somehow Elsie had expected to make good her offer to knit back the sweater.

She was about to turn away, when David drew from his pocket a great ball of wool and aimed it straight at Fido. That wise little animal took his cue with the same accuracy that a well trained god of love takes his arrow and shoots.

Elsie stood still, took a straight and intensely interested look at David, then walked slowly toward him. David arose to his feet and held out the remnants of that sweater.

"I'm ready now for you to raknit my sweater," he said with a boyish laugh.

Elsie, too, laughed, and Fido scampered up delighted at being so completely tangled up in the wool of romance.

The specialist had most decidedly done the right thing for David.

ABDUCTION CHARGED

Former Minister, Found Guilty, Will Appeal to Higher Court.

Oklahoma City, Dec. 1.—Joseph E. Yeats, formerly a minister of Alluwe, Okla., charged with the abduction of 15-year-old Georgia Fields, one time a chorister in Yeats' church, was found guilty by a jury at Nowata, Okla. The 12 men, 10 farmers and two oil field employees, fixed his punishment at five years in the state penitentiary. Yeats heard the verdict unflinchingly. Shortly afterwards he declared he would "carry on the work of the Lord wherever I happen to be." His attorneys announced they would appeal the case to the state criminal court of appeals. Judge Charles Baskin announced he would pass sentence upon Yeats Dec. 6. The abduction charge grew out of Yeats' elopement with the girl last September after a marriage ceremony which he admitted on the stand that he himself performed.

BODY FOUND IN COTTAGE

Authorities Investigating the Murder of a French Chemist.

Los Angeles, Dec. 1.—According to the police, Fred W. Ferrer, 40, a French chemist, was slain by persons who sought to gain possession of a secret formula for the manufacture of illicit liquor. Ferrer was found stabbed to death in a cottage with an undischarged pistol by his side. Edward Eldridge, known to the police several months ago, when he became involved in a shooting after he had paid bootlegger fines for another person, formerly occupied the cottage where Ferrer's body was found. Ferrer was last seen Tuesday, when he left home for an appointment which was not kept. He returned home from Mexico several days ago. Ferrer came from France five years ago, according to his wife, whom he married two years ago.

BIG CROWD AT AUCTION

Aer-O-Plane Merchants Have Most Successful Sale Saturday.

Pair of Blankets Brought $840, Sack of Sugar $380 and Other Articles in Proportion—Total Sales Amounted to $7,970—List of Articles Sold.

A good sized crowd of enthusiastic Aer-O-Plane bondholders crowded the salesrooms of the Ford and Fordson company Saturday afternoon to bid on articles of merchandise, offered at the eighth Aer-O-Plane sale held by the merchants of this city. Three hundred and seventy-five people were present and Emanuel Dresbach was the auctioneer. The sales amounted to $7,970.

The bidding was spirited and the articles went like hot cakes. Blankets seemed to have been the most popular articles offered. The weather for the past few days has put people in the habit of piling their beds high with this kind of clothing.

The highest bid for a wool blanket was $840. An Indian blanket brought $750, another brought $440 and still another for $350.

Sugar came next in value, $380 for a twenty-five pound sack was the highest bid, $375 and $350 were some other bids, that got recognition from the auctioneer.

The list of the articles offered, the price and the purchasers of same, is as follows:

25 pound sack of sugar, $135, Benjamin F. Alkire.

25 pound sack of sugar, $380, Donald Watt.

Ten pounds of lard, $205, Mrs. Oscar Heffner.

Indian blanket, $350, Ezra Dewey

Dozen bars Butter milk soap, $180, Mary Crum.

Rear view mirror, $105, Mrs. Otis Myers.

Bundle of shingles, $165, J. B. Ogle.

Ten gallons of gasoline, $205, Julius Helwagen.

Cleaning suit, $175, Mabel Young.

25 pounds of sugar, $380, Will Betts Jr.

Wool blanket $840, Earl W. Lutz.

25 bars of soap, $290, Erma Strawser.

Five gallons of motor oil, $310, Mrs. Louis Dresbach.

25 pound sack of flour, $210, Kathryn Stewart.

Cleaning suit, $100, Mrs. L. J. Johnson.

Hot water bottle, $210, Earl Brown.

Inner tube, $230, Maurie Stainer.

Five gallons of motor oil, $235, Mrs. Weaver.

Large cake, $170, A. C. Amspaugh.

Two Columbia records, $175, Mrs. M. A. Leist.

25 pounds of sugar, $350, Joseph Bell.

25 cakes of laundry soap, $200, Mrs. R. L. Rowe.

Indian blanket, $750, William List.

Lunch box with thermos bottle, $300 Mrs. Noah Bowsher.

25 pounds of sugar, $350, Mrs. George Cook.

Subscription to Union-Herald, $195, Ray Anderson.

Box San Felice cigars, $250, L. E. Thomas.

25 pound sack of sugar, $375, Mrs. Walter Eldridge.

Indian blanket, $440, Joseph Butts.

More Smoking in Summer.

The percentage of tobacco consumed during the summer months greatly exceeds that used during a month in the winter, according to figures compiled by a prominent tobacco man. "I can only explain the increased sales in the summer season by the fact that smokers are outdoors much more during the warm weather and have more opportunity to smoke," said the tobacco man. "In the winter time a man won't always smoke when he's outdoors. On a chilly day he prefers to put his hands in his pockets instead of holding a cigarette or cigar. In the summer time a man lying on the beach or out in the country may smoke to his heart's content."

Sarcastic.

"Tomorrow," howled the exasperated manager, after he had seen the ninth packageless patron leave his shop, "I'm going to put a showcase of gold dollars out front, marked down to 90 cents and see if you get rid of few of 'em."—Public Ledger.
